

TD Ameritrade Singapore Pte. Ltd.

TD Ameritrade Singapore Pte. Ltd. holds certain order types on our servers, such as stops and conditional orders, when market centers do not support all of the features we offer. These order types can automate some functions that would otherwise require constant attention to markets, but they are subject to a range of issues caused by market data providers and exchanges that are outside of our control.

These orders may fail to execute or may execute incorrectly as a result of issues surrounding market data and volatility calculations. Data from exchanges or our data providers can be missing, inconsistent, or erroneous. Exchanges may subsequently “bust” reported trades if they are deemed outside of their parameters. Trading halts also can affect reported data. Clients should consider this sensitivity to market data before submitting these orders.
